The Role of Family: Exploring an International Platform for Justice Reform

Carol Sharpio

(Institute for Economic and Social Policy Reform, Columbia University)

24 May 2010, 10am-12pm

University of Glasgow, Wolfson Building, Seminar room 2

Event Details: Every year, millions of men, women, and young people, worldwide, leave jail or prison and return to their families and communities. To improve outcomes for individuals, their families, and their social networks while preventing and reducing crime and improving public safety Carol Sharpio suggests a shift in focus from the individual to the family. In this seminar she explores what it would take to have government, citizen-sector, and faith-based organizations strive to include families in planning, practice, policy, and programs, especially in areas with concentrated poverty--areas most affected by crime, victimization, and incarceration.
