

Diverse Criminological Perspectives

In this section, you will find resources and information about criminological research from non-hegemonic perspectives. This includes but is not limited to Southern Criminology, Asian Criminology, and Indigenous Criminology.

This list is not intended to be exhaustive, but we are always open to improving it, so if you have any material you think we should include or if you spot any errors, please contact us at enquiries@sccjr.ac.uk

1. Journals

Decolonization of Criminology and Justice

The DCJ is a fully open access, peer-reviewed journal that publishes research outputs aiming to contribute to the decolonization of criminology and justice.

<https://ojs.out.ac.nz/dcj/>

Asian Journal of Criminology

The Asian Journal of Criminology advances the study of criminology and criminal justice, promoting evidence-based public policy in crime prevention, and comparative studies on crime and criminal justice.

<https://www.springer.com/journal/11417>

The International Journal of Criminal Justice Sciences (IJCJS)

Peer-reviewed open access journal focusing on the contemporary issues in Criminology, Criminal Justice, and Victimology, is the official journal of the South Asian Society of Criminology and Victimology (SASCV).

<https://www.ijcjs.com/#atj>

African Journal of Criminology and Justice Studies (AJCJS)

This journal is the official organ of the African Criminology and Justice Association. The journal is here to fill a void in existing knowledge by exposing the discipline to knowledge about and from Africa and Africans worldwide, enriching the discipline in a progressive direction.
